March 2022

Note From Your Curate

The season of Lent is upon us. The feast of Shrove Tuesday falls on March 1st this year, that is the day before Ash Wednesday which is the first day of Lent. The date can range from as early as February 3rd to as late as March 9th. Shrove Tuesday is precisely forty seven days before Easter Sunday, which is of course a moveable feast.

Lent is the time of fasting when many of us think about giving something up. We often think of giving up sweets, chocolate, alcohol and so on after the excesses of Christmas, because we need to take off a few pounds before Spring. Lent can also be a time of thinking positively and making other changes in our lives, which can help one another. Now that the facemasks are coming off after two years of lockdowns and isolation, we can be seen to smile and show a friendly face to each other and greet and chat to each other, as we look forward to bringing our communities back together to celebrate the Queen's Platinum Jubilee.

We must not forget there are some in our communities who remain cautious about getting out and about, we must support them in any way we can, and to help them feel included.

Prayers and Blessings, Kathleen

Prayer for the February

Lord God,
on the way of goodness,
when we fall,
forgive us and lift us up.
Help us to do your will
and seek to bring in your kingdom.
Give us the strength to resist temptation and to do what is right and good
Amen

February 2022

At the end of January, the Government announced plans to radically reform the BBC and review the TV license fee, so it is appropriate to consider what impact these changes may have upon something that many of us value: our own BBC Radio Suffolk.

Many people would support the Government in freezing the annual licence fee over the next two years. Energy bills are rising, and households face other costs as we experience the ongoing economic fallout of the pandemic in the form of rising inflation. Asking the BBC to do some belt tightening and to look for efficiencies at this time is reasonable and should have little or no impact on the quality of its programming.

I also have little doubt from my own experience that parts of the BBC at a national level are over-staffed and inefficient. Each different national news programme - even when they are on the same television channel or radio station - has a completely different production team. This is both unnecessary and expensive.

At national level, BBC channel bosses would do well to learn lessons from our own BBC Radio Suffolk who run the station just as well but on a lower budget and with much fewer staff.

Whilst it is easy to make the case for the BBC at a national level to be run more efficiently and at lower cost, the argument for reform or even scrapping of the license fee is far more complex. When the license fee was introduced, the BBC had a virtual monopoly in UK broadcasting, but times have changed, and there are now hundreds of different television channels and radio stations.

Many people, particularly young people, no longer watch television and instead receive much of their news from social media and entertainment via streaming services such as Netflix, YouTube, or Amazon Prime. This trend is only set to continue, so, it is understandable that people who do not use the BBC would consider the idea of paying a license fee to be outdated.

The BBC is not perfect. It needs to cut its production costs. It needs reform, and to more accurately represent the interests of those living outside of the metropolitan bubble. But, there does remain an important role for a public service broadcaster in our country to present impartial and balanced news with integrity and accuracy. This is ever more important in this age of social media which can often be filled with inaccuracies and misinformation, with perhaps one of the worst examples being the behaviour of the anti-vaccination movement in spreading lies and pseudo-science online. Surely, if there were a time where impartial and balanced news reporting was needed from a public service broadcaster, this is it.

The best of the BBC can be found in our own BBC Radio Suffolk, which is why I shall continue to support some form of a continuing licence fee, but for the BBC to survive, Broadcasting House needs to learn a lot of lessons from their local stations.

DALLINGHOO NOTES

St Mary's, Dallinghoo - How is our repair programme going?

The repairs to the outside are complete and they look fantastic. So, do go and have a walk around St Mary's and you'll see lots of evidence of new stonework, repointing, roof repairs and gutter repairs. In a few months' time these will start to 'weather-in' and disappear - so do go soon.
Meanwhile we are planning the internal repair programme. The main challenges are to:

- Remove all the flaking plaster, repair the cracks and then replaster
- Modify two of the windows in the north and south nave to enable secure ventilation
- Repair the areas of the floor where tiles have come loose
- Clean and inspect all the woodwork and walls
- Where needed, repair and treat the wood worm and death watch beetle infestations
- And finally, to redecorate

This phase will cost about £35,000 and we are hoping to be able to raise the money to carry out the work this Autumn. So do please make a donation to help us by visiting our JustGiving page <https://www.justgiving.com/search?q=Dallinghoo>

For more information about our appeal contact Jeremy Quinlan (jeremyq@tiscali.co.uk), Chairman of the Dallinghoo Church Repair Fund.

In aid of the Dallinghoo Church Repair Fund
Friday 11th March at 6.30 pm
